

Serious Business Game on decision-making

- Learn the key skills how to sharpen your decision-making. -

Gamification Storyline:

In this serious business game, you and your employees train how to analyze problems properly and then make the best possible decisions using the right methods, such as decision trees and solution matrices. Take on the role of the main protagonist James as a professional manager. James is a young man who just learned he inherited his family's small hotel in Key West, Florida. Currently, however, James lives in Chicago as a successful hotel manager. There he has built a prosperous life for himself. His grandmother Rose wants him to take over the family hotel as the new manager and continue running it. He would prefer to sell the hotel immediately and continue living in Chicago. In order to make the right decisions and validate rational solutions, he finds the appropriate methodical guidance in his mother's diary to carefully analyze each set of problems and find a fitting solution in each case.

When a massive hurricane makes landfall, James will be forced to react, take action, and start making decisions. Only then will he be able to save the hotel and its guests.

Improve your decision method portfolio.

Discover that the first solution does not always have to be the best one.
